WHEN TO REFER

- Diagnosis is uncertain or symptoms do not match the radiograph.
- Complex anatomy, calcification, retreatment, or persistent apical disease.
- Suspected crack, vertical root fracture, resorption, or dental trauma.
- The patient needs a specialist conversation about saving the tooth versus extraction.

If you are unsure whether a case is appropriate, call and discuss it directly.

WHAT YOUR OFFICE GETS BACK

- 1 A same-day written diagnostic report
Endodontic diagnosis, relevant CBCT findings, and prognosis in clear language.
- 2 Images when they help
Annotated JPEG slices, with DICOM available on request.
- 3 A patient-ready explanation
So your team can reinforce the same plan after the patient returns.
- 4 A direct conversation for complex cases
A phone call within 24 hours when the diagnosis or prognosis is borderline.

SPECIALIST TOOLS. PRACTICAL COMMUNICATION.

Every complex case is evaluated with the Zeiss OPMI surgical microscope and, when indicated, the J. Morita Veraview X800 CBCT in Endo Mode (80 micrometre voxel, 40 x 40 mm limited field of view).

The goal is not just treatment - it is a diagnosis and plan your patient can understand.
